MESSAGE FROM THE HEADTEACHER

This week's newsletter is all about collaboration. You will read about students and staff who have been involved in collaborative performances, inter-school competitions and visiting other colleges to learn from their peers. In addition, The Governing Body has held two information evenings about the consultation regarding conversion to an academy and forming a Multi Academy Trust with other schools. I would like to thank those parents who attended the events or have sent in questions. All of the questions and answers will be put on the website.

REIGATE SCHOOLS TOGETHER

On Friday 6th November the Reigate School choir, Vocal Harmoniez, participated in a community event involving five local primary schools. The concert was raising money for a selection of charities with a theme of Broadway musicals. Performing a medley from Hairspray the girls from Reigate School dazzled the audience with their epic singing and fun jazz dance moves. All schools combined together to perform four magnificent numbers. The primary schools also sang individual pieces, involving songs from Mary Poppins, Annie and Joseph And His Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat. It was a great opportunity to be part of this event and we can't wait until the next concert!

GCSE CATERING TRIP

On November 3rd and 5th a total of 59 Year 11 Catering students went to Central Sussex College in Crawley. The catering school run a restaurant called Le Cordon Vert which is open to the public for lunch on Tuesdays to Thursdays. Our students were able to enjoy a two course meal of either a starter and a main course or a main course and dessert. The meal was cooked and served by the catering students on the Tuesday and the cabin crew students on the Thursday. The college then took the students on a tour of the catering, hair and beauty and cabin crew training departments.

HAMLET AT LEATHERHEAD THEATRE

On Wednesday 4th November Reigate Drama Club put on a production of Hamlet at the Shakespeare Schools' Festival. There were three other schools performing, they chose Midsummer Night's Dream, Julius Caesar and The Tempest. The performance went really well with little to no mistakes. It was great fun and everyone who took part enjoyed it. The cast ranged from Year 8 to Year 9 students with two Year 9 technicians. The Shakespeare School's Festival Co-ordinator said, "Well done for your production of Hamlet. I really enjoyed the contrast in the play between the humour of the play within the play and the sadness of the rest of the story. This distinct contrast focused the audience's attention and gave great clarity to the story's narrative arc. This was also strengthened by the minimal props/costumes and tech as the simplicity of that gave space for the story and character to be amplified. Your cast's vocal projection was excellent and meant that I could hear every line despite sitting in the back row. It was a real pleasure to see the joy on the faces of your students and their parents after they had performed."

ARMISTICE DAY MEMORIAL SERVICE

Etienne, Oscar and Sharon represented Reigate School at a memorial service for Armistice Day at The South Park Memorial opposite St Luke's Church. The two girls read their own war poems, which they had written as part of their English assessment and Oscar read the names of the soldiers that died whilst in service.

Complaints were scattered through the thick air about our bodies being in agony and soaking up the mud.

Fleeing from gunshots and dragging our fatigued legs. My mates couldn't move without their knees buckling and flopping.

Us zombified men staggered like drunks after ten beers. Rings of grey and black circled our blurry eyes. With every step, our bare and scarred feet sank deeper into the sea of the dead.

Noxious air singed the hairs of my nose. "Run! Gas! Run!!"

With the diminutive strength in our hands, on went the mask. Our scared and bruised bodies got an adrenaline rush, but one fell behind crawling and screeching "Help!" but I couldn't.

I felt as though I was being baked in an oven at its highest temperature, but the steam was a hideous green and unbreathable.

His desperate pleas of anguish, crying for support and aid. Powerless I stood, with the heart-wrenching thought of death.

You see a man at your feet, gagging out his lungs. Now imagine how pathetic, helpless and guilty you will feel. Think about lifting his body, his dying, squirming body onto a wagon. Seeing his crimson drenched face, and the lingering thought of inevitability.

Lungs spluttering out his mouth like a fountain. The sound of blood, cold blood, ringing through your ears, suddenly it became tranquil. The boys and I knew death had come.

Do you want out to the banging of guns and bombs? Leaving your family, friends and loved ones behind? To come back and find them six feet under? Is it glorious to die for your country? I don't think so.

A Modern Dulce et Decorum est
by Etienne Baker

Thick mud surrounds us and our voices wheeze. I ache with pain – will there be an end to the war?

My feet traipse slowly towards safety, as I try to push the suffering behind me.

We amble in our bedraggled brown uniform, and our ears are dead, so we no longer hear the blasts. Our heads throb with the burden of our sins, our wounds bleed with the memories of war.

A gas engulfs us I shout but the voice is hoarse. We muster our strength and fumble for our masks. A comrade is left defenceless – it strikes. He cries pleads as we watch in the lethal silence.

The now green mist of evil has thickened; its fogginess shrouds my view. I see hands desperately trying to grab onto life, but the evil has a deathbed waiting...

The death wagon clunks in front of me. Inside he writhes in agony, glassy, doll-like blue eyes staring. He is dying – do something, help him! You can't. You just sit and watch war take yet another victim.

You're listening to him die, you have no choice. His blood, his life, his memories pour from his mouth. Imagine you are simply listening to an innocent life being stolen.

'It is glorious to die for your country' but is it? Their life was stolen ruthlessly, brutally, and scars of death haunt us to eternity, yet still was no end to the war.

CROSS COUNTRY

Well done to all the girls who took part in the Girls' District Cross Country Competition. It was really wet and muddy but all the girls were brilliant – a great performance!
