Dear Parents and Carers

I hope you have all had a productive week. Just a reminder that teachers will not be setting work for tomorrow so the children will hopefully be able to do something of their choosing away from the screen. One option is to have a look at the following book which includes poems and short stories written by various famous authors to celebrate our NHS staff meant to encourage and enthuse children during the lockdown. The book is entitled 'The Book of Hopes: Words and Pictures to Comfort, Inspire and Entertain Children in Lockdown.' <https://literacytrust.org.uk/family-zone/9-12/book-hopes/>

We are all eagerly awaiting the announcement from Boris Johnson when he will outline the government's plans for lifting lockdown. It is widely believed that this will include some information about re-opening schools and there are rumours that this will be shared today. The Department of Education have told schools that we will not be given any notification ahead of Sunday's announcement.

We have made some outline plans for various scenarios and intend to survey staff, parents and children to ensure we have considered everyone's questions in advance of re-opening. I will be in contact on Monday when I have clarity from the government.

Enjoy the bank holiday weekend.

Take Care

Mr Alexander
